Residents worry about runoff from Mason St. project

What to do with the water, seemed to be the question on everyone's mind among those who attended a discussion last Wednesday night on the proposed public housing development to be situated behind Mason Street.

The discussion, in front of the Planning Board, focused on the problems caused by Sanding Brook, which runs from Paradise, across Broad Street and Mason Street, right through town (mostly underground), and finally into the Androscoggin River. Local residents were

Rebels defeat top seed; ready to battle for title

The Western Maine Class C Baseball Championship is on the line at Telstar High School today (Wednesday), as the Rebel hardballers host the Livermore Falls Andies.

The game is a rematch of last year's championship—a tense defensive battle in which the Rebels ultimately prevailed 3-2.

The Andies, who split their two regular season games with the Rebels, will be looking to avenge last year's loss. On the other hand, the seven seniors on the Rebel starting nine will be looking to earn their last shot at a state title.

If they put away the Andies today, the Rebels will head to Orono Saturday, to face the winner of the Eastern Maine Class C Championship.

Last year the Eastern Maine champion

Aside from dioxin, Berlin mill dumps thousands of tons of chemicals into Androscoggin

The James River mill, in Berlin, N.H., routinely dumps hundreds of thousands of pounds of chemicals into the Androscoggin River. Additionally, it expels hundreds of thousands of pounds of chemicals through its smokestack exhausts and other means of dispersal.

Information on the discharges from the James River mill was obtained by The Citizen through a Freedom of Information Act request to the federal Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C.

The information on the types of chemicals put into the environment, and their amounts in pounds, is contained on forms for Toxic Chemical Release Inventory Reporting. The information is furnished by the mill to the federal EPA and the state Emergency Management office but has not been verified by either. The information below is for calendar year 1987 and was submitted last summer in accordance with EPA reporting requirements that took effect at that time.

The largest amount of any chemical put into the river by James River during 1987 was sodium sulphate, described by Maine's state toxicologist as a salt.

CHEMICALS DISCHARGED BY JAMES RIVER MILL IN 1987
Chemical	Toxicity	Amount & method of discharge
Sodium hydroxide	caustic, irritating	27,000 lbs. in air; 48,000 lbs. on land
Chlorine	irritating gas	690,000 lbs. in air
Chlorine dioxide	irritating gas	640,000 lbs. in air
Sulfuric acid	source of acid rain	50,167 lbs. in air
Methanol	can cause blindness if drunk	418,000 lbs., various means
PCBs	suspected carcinogen	under 1,500 pounds; shipped out of state
Sodium sulphate	non-toxic salt	31,000,000 lbs. in river; 750,000 lbs. in air; 37,000 lbs. on land
Chloroform	probable carcinogen	2,900 lbs. in river; 82,000 lbs. by other means
Acetone	solvent, not very toxic	4,200 lbs. in river; 8,500 lbs. on land
Ammonia	toxic to aquatic life	89,000 lbs. in river; 15,000 lbs. by other means

The most dangerous of the discharges from the James River mill—that is, dioxin—is not listed on the EPA disclosure form for toxic chemical discharges. Maine State Toxicologist Dr. Frakes said the reason for its exclusion from reporting on the form in question is because the total amounts are so small.

However, the toxicity of dioxin is so great that infinitesimal amounts are considered dangerous and have caused cancer in laboratory animals. The EPA has proposed that paper mills limit their discharges of dioxin to 4 parts per quadrillion.

BETHEL ELECTION RESULTS

In yesterday's elections, incumbent Arthur Gilbert won a second three-year term as selectman with 176 votes; he also kept his assessor's seat with 183 votes. Incumbent Victor Coolidge, running as a write-in candidate, lost to write-in candidate John Thurston, 80-115, for selectman, but beat him, 66-55, for assessor.

For school director, unopposed incumbent Merton Brown won with 213 votes; newcomer Jane Roffe, also unopposed, got the second seat with 170 votes.

Class of 1989 says goodbye to Telstar High

With joy, and tears, the 79 members of the Telstar Regional High School Class of 1989 said a final farewell to their alma mater last Friday night at commencement exercises. About 800 friends, relatives and school administrators, faculty and staff packed the gymnasium.

The Telstar band played for the guests, while the graduates entertained by singing.

Andover time capsule to stay buried until 2004

The time capsule buried under the Andover Town Common will rest in peace for another 15 years.

At a special town meeting Monday night, townspeople voted almost unanimously against digging up the capsule as part of this year's Old Home Day celebration.

The capsule was buried during the town's 150th anniversary celebration, in 1954, with the intent to disinter it during the town's bicentennial, in 2004.

However, this year's Old Home Day Committee, concerned that the people who remembered where the capsule was buried were departing this world, had floated the idea of digging it up early.

Voters shot the idea down with little debate. Marshall Meisner, who had initiated a petition against the early opening, seemed to sum up the feeling of the approximately 80 voters at the meeting when he said: "I don't think it was buried with the purpose of digging it up early."

With a similar eye toward history, voters opted to preserve the town's 47-year-old TD14 double-wing snowplow. At this year's annual town meeting, in March, voters approved selling the old plow. But Selectman Fred Emerson later started a petition to keep the vintage plow as a memento of the snows of yesterday.

An article to do so passed easily. The plow will now be moved from the town garage—where it takes up badly needed space—to some as-yet-undecided storage spot, and the highway department will no longer be responsible for its maintenance.

"If it comes in an historical mode, it's just something you look at," Mr. Emerson said.

Voters also agreed to spend $2,000 to resurface the tennis court (from which skateboarders have been banished), to replace the lightning-strapped fire dispatch radio (at a net cost, after insurance offset, of approximately $5,000), and to spend approximately $75,000 over

Local group seeks recreation trail along river bank

The Bethel area may soon boast an outdoor amenity to rank with Cliff Walk in Newport, the footpaths along the Charles River in Boston and Cambridge, the old barge paths along the Erie Canal, or the wandering paths through Germany's Black Forest.

The Friends of the Androscoggin is taking the lead in a major initiative to develop a seven-mile long recreational path along the west bank of the Androscoggin River.

The path, intended for walking, biking or jogging, would run from Bethel Village to the confluence of the Androscoggin and Bear rivers, in Newry.

If all goes well, The Friends hope to have the first section of the footpath open as early as next year.

The largest hurdle faced by the project's supporters will be obtaining easements from the property owners across whose lands the trail would run.

The Friends' Steve Wight said the organization would probably ask for easements wide enough to allow for the construction of a six-foot-wide, gravel-hardened trail, located as close to the river as topography allows.

The land involved has little potential for commercial or residential development, he said, since it is in the floodplain and is also covered by shoreland zoning regulations.

Almost all of the parcels involved are owned by local residents or businesses, Mr. Wight said.

Kirk Siegel, of Gould Academy, and Dean Martins, a Gould senior from Boothbay Harbor, have already researched the names and addresses of landowners.

The next step, Mr. Wight said, would be to begin contacting the individual owners and sounding them out on the idea.

Health Center searches for a management style

Like most 10-year-olds, the Bethel Area Health Center is apparently experiencing growing pains.

During the past year, three staff members—including Executive Director Paul Bray—have either quit or been asked to leave, and Jim Delanater has resigned from the board of trustees.

In addition, Dr. Will Taylor, one of two staff physicians at the center, has announced he will be leaving in mid-September.

Since March of this year the health center has been managed by an interim "management team," which includes an outside consultant hired "to provide direction and management assistance maintaining daily operating functions of the Bethel Area Health Center for an interim period," according to the center's annual report.

Dr. Tom O'Meara, a staff physician currently serving as interim executive director, attributes the staff changes in large part to the health center's rapid growth. "The health center is evolving," he said, the number of patients has increased, along with the types of services offered, and the operation has become increasingly complex.

"Naturally, this has placed increased demands on people," he said.

The health center was established in 1979. It was originally located in the former Brown tourist home, on lower Main Street, and had a staff of three people, two of them part-time.

The center grew rapidly, however. In 1986 it relocated to its present location in the former A&P building on Railroad Street, where it now employs a staff of nine and handles nearly 10,000 patient visits a year—more than three times the number of visits in its first year of operation.

Its services now include not only treatment of minor illnesses, but also emergency and industrial medicine, podiatry, audiology, and counseling for

Chief resumes undergo scrutiny—best six selected

The Bethel Board of Selectmen, together with the ad hoc Police Search Committee, Monday night went through applications for the vacant police chief's job. Fourteen men had applied for the position by the deadline last Friday. The position has been open since Eric Wight resigned in mid-May.

The applications were mostly from inside police officers—some with positions on large police departments. There were also a number of out-of-state applicants.

Of the 14 who applied, three are local law enforcement officers. Rickie Osgood, a veteran Bethel officer who resigned this spring, put in his application, as did the town's present officer, Dale Bellman. Also applying was Bethel native Brian Stowell, who currently lives in Bryant Pond. Mr. Stowell has spent 6½ years

Town Meeting tonight

Bethel Town Meeting will convene tonight (Wednesday), in the Telstar Regional High School auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m.

Among issues voters will have to decide are:

- Whether to hire a third full-time police officer (the Police Department is currently authorized a chief and one officer, plus reserves);
 - Whether to purchase a new dump truck this year or put it off until next year;
 - Whether to set money aside for a replacement fire truck and replacement police cruiser this year;
 - Whether to plant any more trees along Main Street;
 - Whether to change the name of Col. Dyke Field (the Bethel airport).
- Annual Town Meeting began yesterday with municipal elections. (See separate article.)

Opinions

Don't go near the water

The Friends of the Androscoggin are to be commended for their vision in suggesting a walkway along the northern bank of the Androscoggin River, from Bethel to Bear River in Newry.

A walk along the river is a pleasant prospect on a hot summer day or a cool fall evening. But will the actual experience live up to the promise? Not if we allow James River, across the border in New Hampshire, to continue to use the river as its private sewer.

On page one—through a Freedom of Information Act request—is evidence of the extent to which the James River mill dumps toxic chemicals into our river—as well as into our air. A paddle on the river or a walk along its banks is done in company with James River's hazardous discharges. As those discharges foul the water and the air, the river experience is made that much less healthy and that much less enjoyable.

Meanwhile Governor McKernan pays homage to the paper mills by refusing to order them to clean up their act.

While a pathway along the riverbank is a good idea, it must go hand in hand with a clean-up of the river. And that means a concerted political effort to force James River to stop poisoning the Androscoggin.

River trail

The Friends will also be asking organizations and individuals in the Bethel area to get behind the effort, perhaps by adopting a segment of the path. "This is a major project that will benefit the entire area," he said. "We really hope everyone who can will pitch in to help."

The project is being undertaken in conjunction with Governor McKernan's "Maine Street '90," a celebration of community life in Maine.

As part of that program, the project will be eligible to make use of surplus state resources—for example, the time and equipment of Maine National Guard construction units.

Mr. Wright said the Friends will also be contacting various state agencies to enlist their support.

"The Androscoggin River is without a doubt our most undeveloped recreational resource," Mr. Wright said. "Canoeists can enjoy and appreciate its natural beauty, but not everyone canoes. The footpath will open this lovely stretch to everyone in the community, and perhaps encourage them to join in working to preserve and protect our river."

The proposed riverside trail would extend from Bethel to the point where the Bear River enters the Androscoggin River, at Newry Corner.

concerned that the 48-unit development, which would be built on an 8.2-acre site, would exacerbate the problems already being caused by the brook in residents' cellars.

The firm doing preliminary engineering work on the project, had three representatives at the meeting. One of them, John Koris, explained that they planned to dig a retention pond at the lowest corner of the site to catch run-off from the rest of the site. The pond would hold 53,000 cubic feet of water, enough for any flood up to a 50-year flood, and release it gradually into Sanding Brook after the water in the brook had receded.

Mr. Koris said the pond would help alleviate some of the present problems by holding back the amount of water presently draining unchecked from the 8.2-acre parcel.

He added that he expected the 5-foot-deep pond to be dry except during rainy periods.

A number of listeners found this expectation to be unlikely. "Do you really think you can dig five feet without hitting water?" asked Planning Board Chairman Reggie Brown.

And Mason Street resident Carl Hansen added that since the area is already as soggy as a hole is dug it will fill with water.

Ken Riley was concerned about who would maintain the pond and keep it from silting up so that it could perform its function of holding 53,000-cubic feet of water. Mr. Koris, the engineer from Technical Services Inc., said it would be the developer's responsibility to keep the pond in shape.

The developer of the proposed project is Gleichman & Co., a Portland firm that specializes in public housing projects. The Edmund Muskie Development Center, on Congress Street, in Rumford, is one of the company's projects, as are projects in Dixfield and Farmington.

Company spokeswoman Pam Gleichman told the Planning Board that her firm both develops and manages the properties they build. "Our objective is long-term," she said.

In the Mason Street project, there would be 1-, 2-, and 3-bedroom apartments, whose rent would range from $300 to $350 a month, plus utilities. For those unable to afford these rents, the state would subsidize up to $150 of the monthly rent.

Mrs. Gleichman said Bethel residents would have first priority in getting an apartment in the project, while former Bethel residents would have second priority. Others who were homeless would be the third priority.

She said a market study conducted in the area showed "a dramatic need for affordable housing." (Those findings were borne out in a report made to the Planning Board by the Board of Selectmen last week by the Town's Affordable Housing Committee. That report will be formally presented to the public next week.)

As with all other large-scale projects in town, the Bethel Park Apartments depend on sewer availability, and that matter is tied up in negotiations between the Town and the State.

Mrs. Gleichman said if Planning Board approval is received and if the sewer question is resolved favorably, her company could start construction this fall.

In other matters coming before the board last Wednesday night, Billy Stowell presented an application from Keith Durgin to develop a sand and gravel pit within an 18-acre parcel lying between the Pleasant River and the Androscoggin River, in West Bethel. The plan is to dig out approximately 20 feet of sand and gravel on about 10 acres of the site.

Board members expressed concern about digging along the bank of the Androscoggin, which has already slipped away in that area during the April 1987 flood.

chronic pain, stress, mental health and substance abuse.

But while the health center's operations have grown in scope and sophistication, the board members remain heavily involved in its day-to-day operations—much so for former Executive Director Bray, who resigned after less than a year at the center.

"Paul wanted to run the show without such heavy board involvement in the day-to-day operations," said Dr. O'Meara.

Mr. Bray said his attempts to run the health center in a more businesslike, efficient manner were resisted by board members who wanted to retain close control over its operations while at the same time maintaining its earlier, less-structured management style.

Jim Delamater, who resigned from the board of trustees following Mr. Bray's resignation (but remains on its finance committee), said the board's hands-on management style placed too great a demand on his own time. Eventually, he predicted, the board will have to be willing to give the center's executive director more real authority over its operations.

According to Dr. O'Meara, the management team that replaced Mr. Bray has made no major changes in the center's policy or procedures, but is looking closely at the center's operations.

"We thought that rather than hire a new director right away, we should spend some time assessing what's going on here," he said.

Board President Elissa Thibodeau acknowledged in the center's annual report. "This past year has been one of transition."

The management interregnum, she said, is "a time to reflect on—as well as to dream about—the Bethel Area Health Center and its role as a part of this community."

The health center is currently advertising for a new executive director.

Sen. Mitchell says...

June 14, Flag Day in our nation, is an opportunity for Americans to reflect on the nation and the values that our flag symbolizes. The communities who proudly fly the flag on June 14 are saying, in effect, "Remember what it means to be an American."

This year, with Flag Day coming so closely in the wake of the brutal massacre of unarmed student protesters in Beijing, China, it is especially important for every one of us to take a little time and think seriously about our nation and our values on Flag Day.

The students in China were demonstrating for freedom and a greater voice in the government by the people. They were asking that their government, which has asked the Chinese people to respond to economic incentives with greater diligence, give the people a larger voice in the direction of their society.

They sought not to overthrow their government, or even their system, but to open it to a broader range of voices and views. They sought in limited form what Americans enjoy in virtually unlimited form: The right to choose the persons and policies by which they would be governed.

Our flag is a symbol of our nation, which lives by the values of self-government and individual freedom. The flag that was glimpsed through the battle smoke in the War of 1812, at Fort Henry near Baltimore, and which was forever enshrined in "The Star-Spangled Banner," became a precious symbol because the forces besieging our young nation represented what was then the world's greatest imperial power.

Those opening words of our National Anthem have given generations of Americans a thrill on each hearing, because at Fort Henry the flag stood for more than a small nation surviving an onslaught from a larger one. It stood for the human spirit whose freedom our nation protects, and every human being responds to the victory of the human spirit.

In the same way, the plaster statue the Chinese students raised in Tiananmen Square directly across from the giant poster of Mao Tse-Tung, with which the Square is decorated, was a symbol of the human spirit standing against the monolithic power of the State. When the tanks crushed the "Godless of Liberty," as the students called her, they were trying to crush the spirit of those who built her and placed her there.

Flag Day is a day to venerate a symbol—our flag. But in reality, what we venerate is the thing symbolized—the human spirit that created the symbol, the same human spirit that has shown so courageously in Chinese cities over the past days, that freedom and liberty are the same as life to human beings.

We Americans have been the inheritors of a system that recognized and respects each of us as individual, free human beings. We owe everything we are to that fact. Flag Day reminds us of that; and this year, in particular, we owe it to ourselves to remember.

Ask a Lawyer...

My mother passed away recently leaving no assets. Am I responsible for paying her bills?

The answer to this question is generally no.

The bills of a deceased parent can take many forms, including car loans, a home mortgage, medical bills and utility charges. These obligations are really contracts and the normal contract rule is that a person must have made a promise to pay, whether express or implied, before he or she has any duty to pay. Since a child would not normally have assented to a parent's obligations, the child would have no responsibility to pay them.

A different situation could arise, however, where a child signs a loan for the benefit of a parent as a co-maker or agrees to guarantee the loan. If, for example, a parent applies for a loan but in the opinion of the lender looks insufficiently earning power to justify the granting of a loan, a child could, if he or she so desired, co-sign for the parent either as a co-maker of the obligation or as guarantor of the obligation as an independent contract for the parent to make a loan. If this occurs the child has independently promised to pay the loan and the bank can proceed against the child to collect the debt.

It is also important to remember that, even though a child usually has no obligation to pay the deceased parent's bills, this does not affect a creditor's rights in any collateral securing that debt. For example, if a parent dies owing money on a car loan, the creditor can repossess the car to satisfy the obligation even though the child is not responsible for the debt.

In summary, the child is not normally liable for the debts of a parent absent an express or implied contract to that effect, such as where a child co-signs on an obligation for a parent. A creditor's interest in any collateral is not affected by the death of a parent, however, even though a child has no responsibility to pay the debt. This allows a creditor to proceed against the property of the deceased parent, a right which he or she would not have if the child had no responsibility to pay the debt of the deceased parent in order to keep the property.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

I am writing in concern of vandalism done at the York Cemetery, in Albany. On Monday, May 29, my sister and I went there to place flowers on our grandparents' grave. When we arrived there we were very shocked to see tombstones broken, some pulled up and knocked over.

We also found American flags broken with the holders for these pulled up; along with flowers that were placed on some of the graves pulled and destroyed, with beer cans left in the place of the stones.

We cleaned the mess and tried to replace the stones back to where they belonged. There was a total of 18 stones destroyed.

The question is why and how does someone get enjoyment out of this. Also, how are we to get help in restoring and replacing these stones of the people who are laid there in rest and peace?

To the Editor:

An inksmen peculiarly continues to appear and reappear within your "Thoughts From the Pastor's Study" column. This annoying trait is the presentation of personal bias and value judgment as fact.

An example of this occurs in the May 24 column which assigns "spiritual failure" as the causal agent of "every moral, social (and) civic failure," and asserts, as well, that "History has proven" this.

Verifiable replication is the main element of proof. In these particular assertions it is obviously lacking.

A note from the publisher

First, a thank-you to everyone who expressed concern over the safety of Mary, my wife, who was stuck in Beijing during the weekend of the Tiananmen Square massacre. I was greatly touched by the concern of friends and neighbors. It also impressed upon me what I have known for some time: news travels very quickly in a small town—much more quickly than a newspaper can keep up with it.

Between the time an event occurs—such as the return home of Matt Cummings two weeks ago—and the time the newspaper records it, hundreds of people will already know most of the details. (This is not saying that a newspaper has no place in the delivering of news. It does, because those people who have first-hand knowledge of a story may have no knowledge of a dozen other stories. The newspaper brings all the stories together, in one complete package.)

Mary, who arrived back safely in Bethel Wednesday night, said news of the Beijing massacre seemed to spread quickly throughout China, despite the fact that the government tried to completely deny the fact that thousands of civilians were shot down in cold blood by troops of the 27th Army.

Mary, who has a half-dozen Chinese students in the linguistics classes she teaches at the University of New Hampshire, says they told her they had been calling friends and relatives in China each day to transmit news from the foreign press and to pick up tidbits from home. The students told her that a day after the massacre, friends in China were already well aware of the black events, even without the benefit of a free press.

Mary says much of the credit has to go to the VOA, the BBC and CNN. She says the number of Chinese who understand English is amazing, so that the foreign language broadcasts are eagerly listened to. In addition, the U.S. military's Armed Forces Korea Network—in Seoul, South Korea—broadcasts CNN's television news and is easily received in China.

But, says Mary, she didn't realize just how serious the situation was until she was safely out of China. When her flight from Beijing was canceled, she rushed to the New York Times and then, for the first time, felt how lucky she was to have gotten out of Beijing quickly.

She had gone there a week ago last Friday to take part in a linguistics conference at Tsinghua University, not far from the capital of Beijing. Her flight

To the Editor:

The West Paris Alumni Association wishes to give a special thanks to William Koch, principal of the West Paris Grade School, his staff, teachers and students. We so often hear the negative things that happen and felt the people of the SAD might know about what happened at West Paris.

This year, in an effort to rejuvenate an interest in the West Paris Alumni, we asked if we could have a tour of the school. When many of the Alumni went to West Paris High School (1966 was the last graduating class), we went from Kindergarten to graduation in one building (what is now known as the Agnes Grey School).

Not only did Bill agree, but everyone went out of their way to help make the evening enjoyable. The children did projects, displayed pictures and stories; what pride we have in these kids. They are wonderful.

Many of the teachers came to help with the tour of the school and some were there until 10 p.m. A newsletter was put together for the Alumni.

Arrangements were made to help get items to the banquet and Bill took time to show up Saturday when we were setting up to see if everything was okay.

We can't say enough good things about Bill and his team. They were great. But we also know that he must have had support from SAD staff—teachers and also. Support your teachers and school district. They are responsible for the education of our greatest resource and our future—our children. You should all visit your grade schools—it warms the heart.

Thanks again to everyone who had a part in helping.

from Tokyo arrived at the Beijing airport the night of the bloodbath and a taxi driver refused to take her to her hotel around it. Instead, he took her to a hotel further from the square.

There, amidst a number of Beijing-resident foreigners who were taking refuge in the hotel, most told her to get a flight out of the country as quickly as possible. The U.S. Embassy, on the other hand, told her only to stay off the streets and not try to go to her conference by train, suggesting she go by car.

When she was unable to contact any of the conference organizers to find out if it were to be a conference, and if it were someone could drive her there, she decided it would be best to get out, if she could.

What followed was a taxi ride back to the airport, with the taxi driver ordering her to lie down on the floor as they rode through troop-lined streets. Then fighting through a mob of people to get onto a JAL flight to Tokyo.

Two days after she arrived home, American and other foreign conferees who had assembled at the university campus for the linguistics conference had to be evacuated by a bus sent by the American Embassy. Fortunately she had decided to leave earlier.

I have heard that there is still another Bethelite in China. Joan Putnam says her husband Norman, as of late last week, was still in a city in south-central China. I trust he will be able to get out, if he wants to.

Another update from an item begun in this column last week, concerning CMP and problems caused by their pole replacement job on Main Street. The company's head man for this district—Bill Kerwin, in Bridgton—called to say there had been a misunderstanding when he and his technicians told us the company was not responsible for damages caused to our equipment during the work on the power poles. He said it had always been the company's intention to pay for the damage done to our equipment.

I was pleased to hear him say that. And also relieved, because this spring is not a time when we can afford any unexpected expenses. As any business owner in the area will tell you, the slowing of the economy, which the bigshots in Washington were hoping for, is very evident locally. And it hurts.

Having gotten used to rapid growth during recent years, businesses have been caught short by the marked slowdown. Even the governor had to submit a completely new budget to the Legislature to take into account the

To the Editor:

I'm writing to reach all you admirers of visual expressionism and art ensembles of all kinds, in order to remind you not to miss an opportunity to view the works of one of our local people, who has a rare intuition toward the everyday things the average person may take for granted, and a rare ability to recreate these things on paper, for you and I to admire and perceive the feeling she herself felt from her particular subject at that time.

Her brush strokes are truly gifted, and the ideas behind the paintings are readily visible with incredible accuracy through the composition of lines and space, all filled with perfectly distributed color, evoking the work and bringing it all together harmoniously with a very unique quality and style.

Many artists struggle and torment themselves to create what they think the general public would enjoy to look at. And many just paint to express themselves, not really caring about aesthetic value at all. But Janice Kaufman cannot be placed in either of these categories, because her work is all about what she sees, and her need to record her thoughts pictorially. I'm sure you'll agree that her healthy attitude about life comes across in her work, although she does not realize we all live in a troubled time.

The paintings are peaceful, soothing reminders of the beauty around us, even in ordinary things we seldom notice details of, and we can take joy in knowing that someone did notice and went so far as to put it there for us to see.

Mrs. Kaufman's work will be on display at the Upon Playhouse (Hammone House) on Saturday, June 17, from 4 until 6 p.m. There will be wine and cheese and a special experience waiting for you there. So just come and see for yourself.

drastically reduced revenues from the state sales tax. The bright side of the economic downturn is that housing prices have eased somewhat, as has the tight employment picture.

It's nice to see the dozen new trees on Main Street, from the Casco Bank to the IGA. It's also interesting to hear some of the comments associated with the trees: they won't be able to grow in the poor soil, they're too close to the power poles, they'll grow into the wires, town crews will be unable to plow, etc., etc.

The tree-planting program is sure to get a careful review at Town Meeting tonight (Wednesday) since the selectmen are asking for more money to plant a second increment of trees on Main Street. The Budget Committee has said no to the idea. Town Meeting will have to decide, and there are strong opinions on both sides of the issue.

See you there, at Telstar auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m.

Some late news on the China story. I learned today (Tuesday) that Norman Putnam, who was in China on business, was able to get out of that country last Saturday. Wife Joan said he has no plans to return any time soon.

Playoffs

Madawaska Owls beat the Rebels, 6-2, for the state championship. This year Limestone knocked the Owls out in the quarterfinals of the Eastern Maine playoffs.

The fourth-seeded Rebels earned their way into this season's Western Maine Championship by defeating North Yarmouth, 6-1, last Wednesday. Then, tightening their defense still further, they bested top-seeded Georges Valley, 5-0, in a rain-delayed game finally held on Monday.

The first playoff victory was dominated by the pitching of Jim Merrill (with a little relief help from Gary Williamson) and the hitting of Brant Remington (three hits, three RBI).

Against Georges Valley, Telstar ace Williamson took charge, allowing only one hit and striking out 14.

Gary walked an uncharacteristic seven batters, but when Georges Valley threatened the Rebels' defense closed the door.

Rebel batters had their own troubles reaching Georges Valley right-hander Bob Culler, who struck out 13. But when the Rebels did get an opening they were able to capitalize—taking advantage of walks, errors and timely singles, they got the runs they needed to earn their way into their third straight Western Maine Championship game.

While the Telstar boys are in the thick of the playoff battle, postseason action ended early for the girls' softball team.

Coach Jim Lunney's young squad compiled an outstanding 13-3 record during the regular season, enough to earn them the third seed in playoff standings.

Unfortunately, a late-inning barrage by a hard-hitting Presport team knocked the Rebels out in the first game of the playoffs, which was held last Wednesday at the Telstar diamond.

Going into the sixth inning, Telstar pitcher Angie Hebert had allowed only two hits and was nursing a 5-2 lead. But before the Rebels were out of the inning, they found themselves down 5-5.

The Falcons went on to a 13-5 victory, dashing the home team's championship hopes.

Newry officials taking close look at biggest-ever housing project

The Newry Planning Board and Glover Development Corp., developer of the proposed Powder Ridge Subdivision, are taking the application review process one well-deliberated step at a time.

"We feel that we set precedents with each review," said Planning Board Chairman But Mills, "but at the same time we don't want to make the process any more painful than necessary."

At a board meeting last Wednesday night, board members listed a number of possible deficiencies with the application—mostly minor technical matters—and they discussed more general concerns they have with the overall project, the largest such undertaking in the town's history.

The project, on 369 acres, would have 99 condominium units (in 26 buildings) and 100 households (half of which would have duplexes), for a total of approximately 250 units.

The board put off either accepting the application as complete or formally specifying its deficiencies, electing instead to take the matter up again at its next meeting, scheduled for June 21. The board also expects to schedule at least two public hearings on the project.

For their part, the developers appeared quite willing to go along with the board's methodical approach. "We feel that the level of information we have now will be adequate for you folks to get into the review process," said Tom Randsky of Maine Land Development Consultants Inc., which is steering the application through the application process. But in view of the size of the project, he said, the developers wouldn't press the board for quick action, or hold it to state-mandated decision deadlines. "We're willing to waive those kinds of time limits in order to come up with acceptable procedures," he said.

A variety of concerns did surface at last week's meeting, most pertaining to the roads proposed for the subdivision. Board member Mike Lynch questioned the legal status of the various rights-of-way or easements required by the roads that will access the subdivision.

Mike O'Donnell, the developer's attorney, conceded the situation was delicate. "It's tricky; there's no doubt about it," he said.

Member Jim Sysko questioned whether the project would jeopardize the town's right-of-way along the route of the old Mountain Road, which runs through the project.

By COLISTA MORGAN

Color bursts forth more radiantly in June for it's the essence of summer. To praise this time in nature would be as evocative as the notes of a piano coming from the twilight distance.

With so many rainy days I haven't been far so haven't seen many flowers. I have seen the pink Lady's Slipper, so graceful, tall and slender. This is a blossom whose charm never wanes. It seems to be touched with the spirit of the deep woods. I have found it growing in many places in dry or moist ground. One of the finest specimens I ever saw sprang out of cushions of crisp moss high up among the rocks of an exposed hillside.

Again I have seen them growing from decaying wood, a whole row perched like birds along a crumbling log. In June these pink balloon-like blossoms float from their slender scapes.

Little ruby-throats live here every summer, playing all over the flowers. I have always wished I could find their nest but never have. It must be a miniature miracle. Even their plumage and the speed of their flight are miraculous, to my way of thinking. They visit my hummingbird feeder often. I have seen one be dignified, then again he can get mad in proportion to his size than anybody else that I know.

Flag Day is with us this week. This day was first observed in 1881 at Hartford, Conn., by hanging out flags and by having a patriotic program and prayer.

Today if the flag could speak it might say, "I float for the dignity and honor and protection of all who love liberty and equality."

On Sunday, I had dinner with Leonas, Fay and Ann Holt at the farm.

I was in Bethel Monday to have some dental work done. Leonas Holt had some work done also.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Inman are moving to their camp here for the summer. I have had several visitors this week. Mr. and Mrs. Roanne Jones, of Greenville, came on Thursday, which was a real surprise. She is my niece but I had not seen her for a long time. Others who called were Rena Curtis, Evelyn Heikkinen, Rita Hakala, town, and Sally Holt, Standish.

CARD OF THANKS

There are no words that I can think of that would begin to express my sincerest appreciation for everything done for me in my recent emergency and hospitalization. Thanks first to Ken, then to the B.E.A.R.S. for their expertise and kindness in caring for me. Thanks to Dennis Swan for being the first attendant to arrive and for Dennis and Mary Buckman for their care and kindness en route. And to the driver for getting us to the hospital safely and rapidly. Thanks to everyone that arrived at the house to help out. Thank you, Dr. Peter Harbage and the emergency room staff at Stephens Memorial Hospital. Thanks to the staff in the special care unit, especially Mary Johnson, for special reasons. Thanks, too, to all of my family, friends and neighbors for flowers, cards, visits, phone calls and prayers. I appreciate all of these things from the bottom of my heart.

Newry

By AMY HANSCOM

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Hanscom are parents of a baby girl, born June 7, at the Rumford Community Hospital. She has been named Kelsey Marie, and weighed 9 pounds 14 1/2 ounces. Maternal grandparents are Norman and Eleanor Davis. Paternal grandparents are Sidney and Kathy Hanscom, Bethel. She has three brothers: Jay, 5, and twins Adam and Eric, 4.

Soldierman Stephen Wright, Solid Waste Committee Chairman Sigmund Sysko and Dwight Merrill, of D & E Sanitation, Bethel, made a tour of the town Wednesday, preparing for the start of door-to-door solid waste pickup. Pickups will be made Wednesdays, starting July 5. Waste must be placed at roadside, in proper containers, with a limit of 75 pounds per container. The number of homes for pickups was determined, as well as the location of five green boxes.

After June 30, Newry residents will be able to use the Bethel landfill only for white goods, tires, batteries, construction debris, etc. Persons having these items to dispose of must first visit the Bethel Town Office, pay a fee and receive a sticker.

The Ladies Circle met June 5, at the home of Freda Robertson, with 5 members present. The meeting was called to order by President Olive Anderson. Freda Robertson read the devotions and called the roll. She also gave the treasurer's report, which was accepted. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. It was decided not to proceed with the plans for the hot dog stand at the Mollycoddle Day at Bethel. The circle voted to make a donation to Andruscough Home Health Service. Freda Robertson showed the quilt made by Sylvia Wright and tied by Freda. This will be raffled off at the September meeting.

Election of officers was held, with Olive Anderson, president; Sylvia Gray, vice president; and Freda Robertson, secretary and treasurer. The annual dinner will be held at the Madison on July 20. The next meeting will be held July 10, due to the July 4 holiday. It will be held at the home of Louise Tedy, at 7:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Verne Glover, Hollis, spent the weekend at their camp.

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Louise Tedy, Gilbert Seesley and Olive Anderson were at Oxford Lanes, Rumford, bowling June 6. Karlene was high on both single and triple, with one string over 100.

GETTING SHOW ON THE ROAD IS NO SMALL MATTER FOR C.D.T.

"Overture, curtain up, light the lights," and so goes the opening lyrics of a famous Broadway show tune from the show Gypsy. Theater is a wonderful, magical place where dreams come alive and every fantasy is fulfilled. Many of these dreams and fantasies will come alive Thursday, June 15, and Friday, June 16, at the Telstar auditorium when the Children's Dance Theater of Bethel goes to the footlights with its production of the timeless classic "The Wizard of Oz."

People often comment, "I don't know how Miss Sue does it... All those kids." Well, it's not easy. Susan Clements Farrah, director of C.D.T., member of the Professional Dance Teachers Association and member of the National Writers Club, will tell you she "doesn't know either." "I just do it."

What people don't know about these productions is that they have no script. Once the idea has been chosen, everything for the production is put together through dance, mime, song and action. Before Christmas all students begin working on their parts, dances and songs. Over 100 students of all ages, practicing hundreds of thousands of steps in a colossal undertaking. But for Miss Sue it's an undertaking of love.

Planning of the next production begins during the summer. Story lines are checked and rechecked. Talent is always

Tri-Town Rescue

The Auxiliary is having a food sale

June 17, from 9 a.m. to noon, at Trap Corner Store. Homemade bread, rolls, pies, baked beans and biscuits will be sold. Search and Rescue will meet June 19 at 6:30 p.m. for a compass exercise. The group will start at the Trap Corner Rescue barn. Anyone interested in the outdoors—hunters or hikers—would be a great addition to the search and rescue team. The team helps the game wardens search for lost people throughout Oxford County. For more information, contact the team leader, Mary Emery, at 674-2866, or just show up for Monday's training.

Dr. Tom Whitney is leading training this month. He will discuss child and elderly abuse on Wednesday, June 22.

JOB OPENINGS LISTED

The following are job openings in the Bethel area:

For more information on these and other job openings, contact the Maine Job Service office, at 35 Congress St., Rumford, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Bennett, Scott Emery and Gregor Axler took 2nd place at the MVC meet; Rookie-of-the-Year Award went to Eric Bennett; the Coach's Award went to Tony Jordan; the Running Rebel Award went to Jamie Blake.

Boy's Track coach Tim Kersey noted that the track teams continue to garner ever-increasing numbers of Telstar athletes. In fact, Telstar was the only school in the MVC that required two buses to transport its track team.

The softball team did not take part in the awards ceremony because the girls were still involved in the playoffs. They will have their own awards ceremony at a later date.

From Augusta

Sen. R. Donald Twitchell

A solid consensus among environmentalists and forest products industry officials has emerged behind legislation to regulate forest harvesting practices in Maine.

The legislative Energy and Natural Resources Committee unanimously recommended passage of the re-drafted measure, a composite drawn primarily from two competing bills sponsored by the Maine Audubon Society and the Maine Forest Products Council.

"The new bill is actually more than a compromise of the other legislation," said Senator Judy C. Kany, of Waterville, who chairs the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. "In some respects, it is stronger than the other two bills."

For example, Sen. Kany pointed out, the re-drafted version provides substantially more professional assistance for small property owners in the management of their woodlots. Under the legislation, the Bureau of Forestry would be authorized to hire 28 field foresters to help small landowners manage their timber acreage.

"It's a strong start, a very positive step toward preserving and sustaining one of the state's most important renewable resources," Sen. Kany said. Under the committee re-draft, any clear-cutting of woodlands of more than five acres would require a reforestation plan as well as compliance with other provisions of the proposed act. Reforestation seeding of clearcut areas would be required within five years of harvest.

Timberland cutting would also be restricted where critical wildlife habitat or soil erosion is threatened, according to regulations issued by the Bureau of Forestry.

One aspect disputed between the two earlier competing bills was whether a municipality could enact tougher standards or would be subordinate to state laws. The re-drafted version permits stronger local ordinances to supersede state requirements.

The legislation carries a $2.6 million price tag, two-thirds of which would be used for the program to assist small woodlot owners.

While it would have preferred something stronger, the Maine Audubon Society called the re-drafted proposal "a measured but decisive initiative." And, the Maine Forest Products Council, characterized it as "a reasonable framework we can all live with."

High interest in the need to regulate harvesting practices in Maine's forests was indicated by a turnout of more than 200 people at the public hearing held a couple of months ago. Without question, the time has come to establish some minimum safeguards to protect and sustain this important renewable resource that has contributed so much to the Maine economy and lifestyle.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Dot and Paul,
The other day we drove through Fryeburg, past the fairgrounds, where we could smell the french fries and hear the crowd. It all reminded us of you and the O'Donnells and our last weekend together. That visit was precipitated by a wedding (your daughter Jan's) and our reunion there; shall we expect the same to follow the September "do" for Amy (O'Donnell)? You'll notice that the best part of a year has passed since our senior sleepover. We've been so busy that the weeks have flown.

In West Bethel, where cows, horses, sheep and chickens are part of the ambience, we do anniversaries, attend meetings, go out to eat, plant our gardens, gather with friends, much the same way that you do. The functions are similar; sometimes the process differs. Last week Juanita and Gilbert Haines celebrated their 25th anniversary. Their daughters and husbands, Jody and Ed Deegan, Louise and Joe Erskine planned a catered dinner in a private room at the Fryeburg Country Motor Inn, Gorham, N.H., for quite a crowd of friends and relatives. Many of the guests were West Bethelites. Everyone enjoyed the hospitality while helping to make a memorable evening for the silver celebrants.

Jane Hosterman could not toast the Haineses, as she was celebrating in Massachusetts with her Simmons College classmates on the occasion of their 45th anniversary of graduation. The four-day gathering at the college campus (with representation from classes that graduated five years apart, starting back in 1919) offered a museum lecture and tour (nearby Gardner Museum), a peek at the grand new sports complex, a night at the Pops with John Williams at the podium, and a round of luncheons, banquets, brunches and even a barbecue. Jane was one of 50 of a class of 250 who reunited for the occasion, and one of nine nurses present, of the 25 who originally took their degrees together in wartime Boston. After the whirlwind of reveling and reminiscing, she spent a quiet overnight with her son and wife, Richard and Patricia Hosterman, in Weston, Mass.

TIMBERPEG

During Jane's absence, husband Dick left town very early one morning (causing great consternation among the villagers who are accustomed to seeing his shades drawn long after the cows go out to graze), and joined Rev. Norman Rust in a roundabout journey to Gardiner. They traveled in the wee hours to the State Insurance Office to represent the West Bethel Union Church at a hearing on the status of Workers Compensation for church staff. At issue were such questions as who should be covered, how is employee status determined, who pays what, etc. The State Insurance Commission promised to deliberate and decide within the lifetime of the appellants.

Later in the week, eight members of Pleasant Valley Grange dined out together. That necessitated a drive to nearby Oxford Grange (nearby by Maine standards, that is—a 45-minute ride got them to their destination) to experience a "Shop 'n Save Supper". That is where the aforementioned "process" differs. It seems that the grocery chain sponsors the supper for area non-profit groups. The food and fixings are courtesy of the store; the organization provides the cook-and-serve-power. The store benefits P.R.-wise, while the hosts pocket the proceeds. The activity is coordinated by a store representative, and in this case, a local radio personality, Bud Sawyer, provided the "entertainment". Everyone gins—even the diners, if they clean their plates.

In the "Let's-Give-a-Round-of- Applause" Department, we congratulate Mariko Furuya, of Yokohama, Japan, upon her graduation from Telstar, along with her neighbor and classmate, Jim Merrill. We applaud Becky Hanscom for being chosen "Student-of-the-Month" and her young cousin, Josh Ayward, on completion of a successful year of pre-school. We clap for Farmer Grover and his new-found restraint as he planted a "much smaller" garden this year. There will be only enough potatoes to feed one or two of the Third World nations.

enjoyed the company and cooperation of Richard Vautour and Laura Tablock. They helped us with the pool opening. Then came Douglas Vautour and Margaret Sparks to build the back steps. Their visit was followed immediately by one from Raymond Vautour (you-know-who's sibling) who collaborated with his brother on the screen enclosure of the kitchen porch that is now accessible by the new steps.

All of this means that when you make your next trip (hopefully in early October) you will be able to sit comfortably on a screened porch when we banish you to the outdoors (that is if you are still smokers). And if we inadvertently lock you out, at least you'll be able to escape via the new stairway.

I'm off for my daily walk down my country lane. These days I march to the cadence of the bobolinks in the field. They whistle and swoop as I approach. I guess their nests must be nearby. The killdeer do a lot of high-pitched peeping as I near them, too. It certainly is different from the "sheer-life" walks when all I met were Canada geese and an occasional pheasant.

We'll probably be in your neck of the woods in July for the shower (Amy's, that is). See you there.
Meanwhile say "Hi" to your Doug and Laurie and Jan. And rest assured that the world is in order up here; the hummingbirds are back. Warm up your voices and your keyboard.

Love, C.B.

NORWAY SIDEWALK ART SALE

The 17th annual sidewalk art sale is scheduled for July 8 along Main Street, Norway, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., with a rain date of July 9. Already, Lee Bean of the Western Maine Art Group has received over 50 applications from artists. "We are expecting an even larger number of artists than last year's 74." A great number of paintings will be for sale. Each artist must have five framed prints to enter the competition. First prize is $350; second, $300. The entry fee is $50. Paintings to be judged for these prizes will be on display at the Art Center for the convenience of the judges.

The art sale committee is soliciting purchase prize patrons along with artists. Letters will be going out to area businesses and individuals. Last year, there were 24 purchase award participants. Artists are asked to enter four paintings in the purchase prize competition. The patrons agree to purchase a painting for $300 from the four selected by each artist.

Exhibitors must provide their own stands and display items, which must not exceed 15 feet by six feet. Artists are encouraged to submit applications early. Location assignments will be made in order of receipt of applications. For further information, write to the Western Maine Art Group at P.O. Box 71, Norway, 04268 or call 207-743-5911.

A SPECIAL THANK-YOU

My family and friends have been the most precious part of my life and you have all proved to be wonderful people. During my recent operation and recovery, I have received numerous prayers for a speedy recovery, phone calls, flowers, gifts, visitors in the hospital and at home, food to my family. You have all made each day a delight to me.

A thank you to:
My family for caring.
My friends for all their kindness.
"Our team" at BSB.
Dr. Hugh Robinson.
Dr. Harper.

The O.R. crew—for my care and for taking care of an anxious daughter, Denise.

All the attending nurses and aides. Stephens Memorial Hospital should be commended on the service and treatment I received. This excellent service began at the emergency room admission desk, my pre-op visit with Deedee Groves and did not stop until I was discharged.

Thank you again and God bless you all.

It has been a very busy week for parents so imagine what it has been for the graduates. After graduation on Friday evening we had a celebration party with family members. It was nice. The weather wasn't too good for the Project Graduation but I'm sure they had a good time.

Carlos Alzupin's parents arrived Thursday evening from Barcelona, Spain, to attend his graduation. Monday they will be leaving to visit the Westworth College campus in the Boston area, where Carlos will be attending school in the fall. They plan to spend a week in New York before returning to Spain.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

The Dr. Moses Mason House, a gift to the Bethel Historical Society from the William Bingham II Trust for Charity, opened to the public 15 years ago this year. During that 15 years, the Society has grown from a membership of less than 50 to over 800 members in over 30 states and four Canadian provinces. The collections of the Society have grown from nearly nothing to a building bulging with treasures of the past.

In the past 15 years, the Society has established a significant publications record, with four books, several pamphlets and its ever-popular quarterly, "The Bethel Courier," to its credit. Its research facilities have grown from the papers of its founder, Eva Bean, to encompass thousands of items, making it the most comprehensive center for local history research in western Maine.

The Society's endowment has grown from nothing to more than $300,000, its budget from a few hundred dollars to $400,000-plus per year, its volunteers from a handful to more than 100, its staff from none to five full- and part-time workers plus contracted services.

During that time, the Society has sponsored workshops and conferences that have drawn people from throughout New England, prepared and housed exhibits that have attracted wide audiences, hosted numerous special events, including Indian Raid '91, and provided educational programs and projects to thousands of students.

The Society's Dr. Moses Mason House Museum and its research facilities continue to lure visitors and researchers from all parts of the world.

For all of these accomplishments, and many other achievements, the Society has been recognized with various awards by the American Association for State and Local History, the Maine League of Historical Societies and Museums, and the Maine Historic Preservation Commission.

During this 15-year period, the Society's chief administrator has been Stanley R. Howe, who was hired in 1974 as curator, became director/curator in 1979 and director in 1983 when Randall H. Bennett was hired as the part-time curator of collections. A Bethel native with family ties extending back in its past to the 1700s, Dr. Howe holds an M.A. degree from the University of Connecticut and a Ph.D. in Canadian History from the University of Maine. A graduate of the prestigious Seminar for Historical Administration (1980) held at Williamsburg, Va., he served as a grant reviewer for the Institute of Museum Services, and chaired the Maine Arts Commission Museum Panel for two years.

He serves on the board of trustees of the Maine Historical Society, where he chairs the publications committee and is book review editor of the "Maine Historical Society Quarterly." A former trustee of Maine Citizens for Historic Preservation, he is currently an advisory trustee for that organization and a member of the executive committee of the Maine Historic Preservation Commission.

Besides his work at the Society and throughout the state, Dr. Howe also teaches history part-time at the University of Southern Maine, in Portland. With 15 years of historical administration at Bethel, Dr. Howe is currently one of the most senior (if not the most senior) of any historical site administrator in Maine.

LOOKING BACKWARD

10 Years Ago: The Bethel Board of Selectmen held their regular meeting in East Bethel, at Alder River Grange hall and acted on a long and varied agenda. Over 100 parents and friends enjoyed a special program of skits and songs by the students who demonstrated how learning could be fun.

20 Years Ago: The first graduation held at Telstar Regional High School was plagued by a power failure caused by electrical storms. Candles and battery-powered emergency lights had to be used. Congressman William D. Hathaway (D-Maine) was the featured speaker. Several of Mrs. Maxine Brown's 3rd

Williams, local attorney, was the author of several poems published in the "North American Book of Verse."

Environmental workshop to be held in Bryant Pond

Did you ever eat a pine tree? Adopt a tree? Make your own paper? All are lessons from Project Learning Tree (PLT).

PLT is a multi-disciplinary environmental education program. It is intended to supplement regular elementary and secondary school curriculum. Youth group leaders have adapted it for many additional uses. It helps students develop the awareness, knowledge, skills and commitment necessary if society is to use the Earth's resources wisely. PLT offers an unbiased, balanced presentation of the interrelationships between natural environments and people. The program emphasizes teaching children "how to think" rather than "what to think."

PLT materials, including an activity guide for Kindergarten through 6th Grade or one for 7th through 12th Grade, are available through an eight-hour workshop. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce teachers and/or youth group leaders to and instruct them in the use of PLT materials.

Sample PLT activities will be demonstrated on June 24 as part of Environmental Awareness Day, a workshop series at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond. Several other workshops will also be offered as part of Environmental Awareness Day, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The cost of attending Environmental Awareness Day is $8 before June 15 and $5 on the day of the workshop.

Continuing education credits are available for teachers seeking recertification.

POTTERY RECEIVES GRANT

Following up on a notice in the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce newsletter led to the Bonnama Pottery receiving a Carl Perkins Grant to learn special techniques in advanced mold making. Carl D. Perkins grants are for adult training or retraining and this special grant covered the cost of conducting a two-day training session at the pottery, May 11 and 12. Those participating were Garret and Malady Bonnama, Nancy Noppa, Linda Nutton, Jane Gorman and Tim Kavanagh. The session was led by Geoffrey Meek, of Goshen, N.Y., a master mold maker.

The Bonnemas wanted training from a specialist who had a broad range of mold making and casting experience. Advanced mold making instruction is not readily available in Maine.

Hands-on instruction is the best way to learn most art, including mold making. During the two-day workshop the six participants divided into three groups, each group working on a different project. By dividing up and sharing the experiences many more techniques could be covered. Some of the topics covered were: turning wet plaster on the potter's wheel, making three-piece molds and trouble-shooting slip-casting problems. Geoffrey Meek brought with him lists of sources for specialized tools and equipment.

Mr. Meek reviewed the Bonnemas's existing equipment and procedures. He critiqued them giving suggestions for making new equipment, purchasing new equipment and altering some of the procedures.

The Bonnemas thought the workshop was extremely valuable and will have a long-term positive effect in their studio. The mold-making techniques they learned will enable them to implement more of their design ideas.

The Carl D. Perkins Grant will be one of the topics covered by a panel at the June 15 business breakfast to be held at

ART EXHIBIT AT CENTER

Pauline Blyth Goss, an artist adept in many media, will show her paintings at the Western Maine Art Group openings exhibition to be held at the Lejos Matosley Art Center, Norway, on June 27-July 7.

The Art Center hours are from 10:30 a.m. through 3 p.m., Tuesday-Saturday. The public is invited to a reception honoring the artist at the Art Center, 265 Main St., Norway, on Tuesday, June 27, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

While we are carrying on with our end-of-year activities, we are also planning ahead for the next school year. Our principal, Mr. Koch, has met with some of our dedicated volunteers to plan a fund-raiser for 1989-90. The volunteers are planning to organize the sale of chocolate bars next September to try to raise enough money to get more computers in our classrooms. Our sale this year was very successful, and we hope to do even better next time around. Please think chocolate. More on this in the fall.

On Saturday, June 3, the West Paris Alumni met for their annual gathering. Dinner was served in the gymnasium. This year marks the 50th anniversary of our gym, and we feel lucky to have it as part of our school. After the dinner, the alumni were able to tour the school and reminisce about how things used to be. Several members of our current staff were on hand to show the building as it is now. Our students had lots of fun displaying for our visitors to admire also.

Classroom news from this week and last is as follows: The Kindergarten has 11 Super Tigers. When the entire class becomes a super tiger, the 1st-graders will be invited for a homemade ice cream party. The Kindergartners are also celebrating the completion of the alphabet. All the letters and letter sounds have been learned and with nearly 100 percent mastery. Congratulations!

The Kindergarten and 1st Grade are planning some upcoming events together. On June 8 they will be visiting the Phillip's Farm in South Woodstock. They will observe the milking process and will taste fresh milk. They will be petting farm animals. Many thanks to Mrs. Carla Phillips who will be their hostess. On June 15, these youngsters will enjoy their own field day. They will walk over to the West Paris ballfield and participate in events, including relay races, games and exercises. Awards will be given out to winning teams. On June 16, the big school has its award day ceremonies.

The Legion Memorial School will have its own awards day. Individuals will receive awards for academic achievement and conduct.

Mrs. Perham reports lots of end-of-year activities, finishing up reading units etc. However, her last week's activity was fun for her students and her guests. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks were the guests. Mr. Brooks entertained the children with his wooden dancing, doll puppets. He brought several and the children were permitted to try to make the puppets dance too. Then the 2nd-graders entertained Mr. and Mrs. Brooks with their own hand-made puppets. A very special thank you to all.

Third-graders are studying Indians and nature. Totem poles abound all over the room. Paper ones are hanging on the ceiling and a wooden one is on display in the front of the room, carved by 3rd-grader Shawn Coffin.

The 4th-graders continue to work hard. They are finishing up their CAP unit, working on two digit division in math, and writing about their trip to Augusta. They have been studying the West and the Rocky Mountain region and this week enjoyed a video of the Grand Canyon. Several of my 4th-graders deserve recognition for work well done this year. Katie Walton did not miss a week all year for learning poetry. The Song of Hiawatha, by Longfellow, was her most ambitious undertaking. Liberty Woodworth, Tanya Rosenberg and Willo Andrews have completed the 5th-grade math book and all the tests and are working hard in a 6th-grade text. Several others may be added to this list by next week. All have been writing memories of the 5th Grade year and several bulletin boards have been created to display their work.

The 5th Grade Yearbook, with 6th Grade memories is published. Students dedicated their yearbook to Mrs. Heidi

Everett, who has been with us for over two years as an aide for Joseph Webb. Joe will be going on to the Junior High School next year and Heidi will no longer be at our school. We all have appreciated Mrs. Everett and will miss her. I'm sure she will want to keep a copy of the yearbook with her collection of memories. Our end-of-year activities include June 9, field day at Hebron Academy. On June 14, we will have our awards assembly for grades 2-6. The 6th-graders will receive certificates as graduates of the elementary school. A variety of other awards and certificates will be presented and our volunteers will be honored with thanks and appreciation for all they have done for us this year. On the last day of school, the 6th-graders will try to be the first class to defeat the faculty in the annual softball game.

If my column seems really long it is because it contains two weeks' worth of news. We have our faculty meetings on Thursday mornings and that is when I get my news. Consequently, even though I write it up Thursday evening, it sometimes arrives too late for current publication. Oh well, only one more week left. I will be sending in a final column, as we will want to recognize all the outstanding students who will be receiving awards during the final week of school.

This week has found us hard at work. The 6th-graders are studying energy in science class. This study includes energy problems and fossil fuels. Diagrams and reports are being prepared to show what has been learned. In math work is being done in graphing and in the area of probability. Charts and tables are being kept and materials are being made to be used in determining probability.

My 5th-graders are finishing up units. The basal readers have been completed and all are enjoying independent reading. Science folders have been collected, journals are being checked for the last time and a few fun activities are being squeezed in.

The 4th-graders are learning about the southwest region of the United States. This will be the last region covered this year. The CAP unit is winding down and the final written book reports are due by the end of the week.

Third-graders are learning leaf identification. They have taken some nature walks and brought back leaf samples. In addition to learning to recognize them, they have made some leaf rubbings and waxed leaves. Along with the 2nd Grade they are hoping for a break in the rain so they can leave the school to themselves on Friday for their very own field day. The two classes have mixed teams for the days' events and ribbons have been made for the winning teams. A pizza picnic is planned and anticipation is at a high point for all concerned.

In 2nd Grade reading, the Mystery Sneaker group, is reading a play, practicing their oral reading and will be reading the play to the class. There is always one play in our basal readers and all classes enjoy reading them.

The Kindergarten and 1st Grade were welcomed at the Phillip's Farms despite the rainy weather. Students were brimming over with explanations of what had been seen and done. Thanks again to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips.

Mrs. Kirchherr and her reading students enjoyed their Scrumptious Sundae party this week. Mrs. Kirchherr and Mrs. Grafiam are very proud of their readers and how much they have read this year. The following students earned a sundae. Their grade and number of books read this year are as follows: Grade 6, Chris Tripp, 23; Grade 5, Cameron Casteel, 27; Holly Hussey, 19; Kevin Hutchins, 20; Renee Pratt, 23; Grade 4, Angie Waterhouse, 28; Alicia Coolidge, 9 (since March); Grade 3, William Grevier, 33; Marc Cote, 33; Daniel Tripp, 33; Crystal Grubb, 25; Jason Beaulieu, 20; Grade 2, Candice Campbell, 8; Melissa Skinner, 8; Elie Beaulieu, 8; Derick Emery, 8; and Sony Glasgow, 8. Congratulations to all.

ANDROSCOGGIN HOME HEALTH SERVICES 1989 FUNDRAISING DRIVE

Androscoggin Home Health Services (AHHS) 1989 annual fund drive was the focus of a recent meeting at the home of Sam and Natalie Timberlake. "Though we did an annual fund last year," said Mrs. Timberlake, AHHS board chairwoman and Bethel area campaign chair, "we're really trying to build on that experience and focus much more on the local area this year. We are trying to build and maintain a valuable program of home care services."

AHHS is the only non-profit Medicare-certified provider of home care in the area and is financed largely through Medicare, Medicaid and other insurance. "Ninety percent of the care we provide is covered under public or private insurance," Mrs. Timberlake said, "but we look to municipalities, businesses and individuals to help us fill in the gaps, and unfortunately we are seeing larger and larger gaps as federal and state funding is decreased."

Serving on the Bethel area fund-raising committee, along with Timberlake, are Cathy Newell, Jan Stowell, Bruce Powell, Rodney Lynch, Jeff Kelcourse and Sandy Endicott.

The Bethel campaign is part of a larger campaign by AHHS throughout the tri-county area. AHHS will use contributions specifically for subsidizing the costs of home care to those without adequate insurance coverage and without means to pay the cost, for support of home hospice care and for matching contributions towards the AHHS parent education program.

"We're a large corporation with many programs and services," Mrs. Timberlake said, "but the common goal is to help people remain independent in their homes. We work to keep families together in a time when families face many pressures."

AHHS staff based in Norway and Rumford made more than 1,700 home visits to people in the community during 1988. That work included:

- 600 nursing visits for dressing, changes, catheter care, colostomy care, injections of medications, monitoring of vital signs and intravenous therapy;
- 975 home health aides and certified nurse aides visits for bathing, dressing, routine personal care and assistance with exercise and locomotion;
- 46 speech therapy visits and 66 physical therapy visits for rehabilitation;
- Helping several terminally ill patients die naturally in their homes with their loved ones as part of hospice care;
- Extensive parenting education and support for several families in which there was an identified risk of abuse or neglect of a child.

Without these interventions by AHHS—some of them complicated yet safe—many people in the community would have been in an institution at greater cost.

While the need for home health services is growing rapidly, resources to pay for the care have not kept pace. Last year, AHHS tripled its budget for indigent care, and it will increase even more—to nearly $200,000—during 1989. In instances where insurance coverage does not meet the total care requirements, AHHS asks for patient payments according to a sliding fee scale based on ability to pay.

This is probably old news but Doris Lawrence went with Lena Dean and Dorcy Robertson to Alice Hoyt's to a Stanley Party; had such a nice time and lovely refreshments.

Saturday, June 3, went to Norway and got Ellen Odlin, then picked up Annie Ellingwood and we went to Woodstock Alumni banquet at Telstar Cafeteria. A delicious buffet and a very good crowd. The oldest alumni class member, 1929, was Mansfield Packard.

Tuesday night, June 7, Joe Vatcher and Madge got back from Nova Scotia.

Joe Kalmowski, Portland, Conn., has arrived at "Big Rock Farm" for the summer.

June 18 there will be an Open House for Jack and Lin Roberts at their home on Tull Town Road, from 2 to 5 p.m. There will be a money tree.

Callers at the Lawrences have been Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Coffin and Jimbo, Mione Record, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bean, Rich Fell and Lucy Robbins. Stopped by on their way to Grange, Doris Pinkham and Arlene Abbott, Jeanne Millett, Odell Heath.

Environmental Day planned for June 24

What is available in the Oxford County area relating to environmental issues and environmental education? To help people answer this question the Oxford County Natural Resources Task Force is sponsoring an "Environmental Awareness Day" at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on June 24.

The program will be a combination of workshops, activities, a tour of the Conservation School and displays by area environmental programs. The purpose of the program is to familiarize adult leaders and youth with environmental programs available in the Oxford County region.

Workshops being presented include 4-H earth connections, environmental education programs available through the Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District, including "Kids for Trees", environmental education curricula presented by the Maine Conservation School, team building through group initiatives and games presented by Outward Bound, Project Learning Tree presented by Boise Cascade, recycling education presented by the Maine Office of Waste and Recycling, water quality protection presented by the Department of Environmental Protection and lake protection presented by the Congress of Lakes Associations.

The program will start with tours of the Conservation School, followed by two concurrent workshop sessions. Participants are asked to bring a brown bag lunch. Lunch will be followed by a time to view displays and finish with a final workshop session. There will be recertification credits available for educators.

Through a 10-year-old's eyes by ALEX GILLIES

I went swimming in Songo on Wednesday night at about 6 p.m. It was cold but the bugs would eat you up if you didn't get in. I got in up to my knees and couldn't go any further until my father told me that if I wasn't in by the time he got there he would splash me. I got in. I swam about 40 feet to the float and in sort of a triangle getting back to shore. It was great once you got in.

I have a 4-year-old parakeet named Sweetie, whom we got when I was 6. He (actually it's a she but we call him a he) is green and has darkish green feathers on his back. He hangs from a plant holder so the cat can't get him. He can repeat what you whistle but no way can he talk. You'd think after spending four years in a cage you would want to get out. But when we open his door he just sits on the ledge of his door. He is a great bird—not too smart, but a great bird.

Registration materials are available from the University of Maine Cooperative Extension, 743-6329. Registration cost is $3 before June 15 and $5 after June 15.

The Oxford County Natural Resources Task Force is a cooperative project of the University of Maine Cooperative Extension, Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District and the Maine Conservation School. The goal of this group is "to encourage youth and adults to care for the environment of Oxford County through awareness, education and responsible actions." In addition to the workshop, this task force is in the process of developing a directory of environmental programs serving the Oxford County area.

WEST BETHEL Children's Center

The Head Start school year has all-too-quickly come to a close, and the staff wishes to take this opportunity to thank each parent and friend of the program for helping to make this past nine months such a successful time. For each committee served on, each ticket sold, every hot dish or dessert brought into the Center for celebrations, each mile driven to transport children home or on field trips, and every moment spent volunteering in the classroom or kitchen is very much appreciated by the staff at the West Bethel Children's Center. The program is much enhanced and made stronger by all your efforts. Thanks so much.

The last couple of weeks have been enjoyed by the reading of the children's favorite books, singing their best-loved songs, and participation in their preferred activities. On Wednesday a picnic was held in observance of bidding farewell to the program year and many friends. Presented with Head Start certificates were: Craig Angevine, Alexander Best, Sadie Cole, Karen Chadburn, Derrick Merchant, Preston Cobb, Amanda Dunham, Julie Dutcher, Casey Gammon, Kyrstle Gould, Roberta Grover, Thomas Hughes, Ashley Kenyon, Glen Knox, Geoff Messer, Joshua Morgan, Jared Morton, Jennifer Taylor, Ryan Wheeler.

The Star-of-the-Week has been Brandon Brown, son of Carolyn and Bruce Brown of West Bethel. Brandon is four years old and enjoys fishing.

Swim program scheduled

The Bethel Area Swim Program for 1989 will begin on Monday, June 26, and run for four weeks, ending on Friday, July 21.

Regular children's classes will be scheduled throughout the day beginning at 9 a.m. at Songo Pond.

Any child six years old or entering the first grade in the fall is eligible for regular class instruction. Classes will include: Non-swimmer, Beginner, Advanced Beginner, Intermediate and Swimmer. The summer schedule is designed to accommodate all ranges of ability and interest.

Non-swimmer is intended for young children who are either afraid of the water or who have had no previous experience but desire to learn to swim. This class focuses on the basics of wading, putting the face in the water, floating, rhythmic breathing and rudiments of the beginner stroke.

Beginner class is intended for young children who have either previous swim experience, are able to perform the above mentioned skills in the Non-swimmer class or are comfortable in the water. Children enrolling in this class should be able to swim unassisted for 15 feet, put their faces in the water and float on their backs.

Prerequisites for the Advanced Beginner class include swimming 20 yards using the crawl stroke, diving into deep water and treading water.

Potential intermediates should be able to perform the crawl stroke for 50 yards, elementary backstroke, survival stroke and be relaxed in deep water.

Swimmer candidates should be able to swim the crawl stroke 75 yards, elementary backstroke and have mastered separately the arm strokes and kicks of the breast-stroke and sidestroke.

A Tiny Tot class may be offered if sufficient number enroll. This is a class designed for parent and child together in the water assisted by the instructor. Exercise, water adjustment skills and some limited swimming skills for older children are the goals in this class.

Children age five and under are eligible. A text is available and recommended for participating adults. Progress and expectations are solely dependent upon the individuals involved; there is no formal instruction or testing of the participants.

Registration forms will be available at the Bethel Town Office from June 8-15. Completed forms for each child with the registration fee should be returned to the Bethel Town Office by June 15 for scheduling purposes. Fees are $5 per child for Bethel residents, $10 for out-of-town participants.

A large birthday celebration was given to Leon Poland at Goldstreet June 2 by Rosalie Poland and family—Lloyd, Earty and Lulani. There were over 100 guests for the "Roasting and Toasting" party. The plans were 6 p.m.-7 p.m. social hour, 7 p.m.-4 p.m. supper hour, 8 p.m.-9 p.m. roasting and toasting. This was carried out with pictures flashed on the screen of Leon's early life to present day. An orchestra played for those who wanted to dance after the show. Everyone enjoyed the party and wished Leon a healthy happy long life.

Dot Critzer was home from Arizona for a week's visit with her relatives. Her brother is Buster Poland, Vernon and sister Evelyn.

I would like to thank all those kind and thoughtful people who sent me sympathy cards in the loss of my sister, Lillian Harmon. We will all miss her. She was cheerful during all these years of being a polio tripple for over five years.

Saturday, Lillian Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews visited with me in the afternoon. Arthur had mowed my small lawn around the house. Having so much rain causes the grass to grow faster, so one can hardly keep up with it. It is hard to find a time when it is dry enough to mow, also.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks, Bertha Benoit, Beatrice Barnes and Olive Davis attended Franklin Grange June 5. Beatrice Barnes, from Portland, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks. Many of us went to Pomonas at Otisfield Tuesday night.

A Benson-Poland reunion was held Sunday, June 4, at the Union Church in South Woodstock, with over 75 attending.

A potluck dinner was held at noon. A very special tour of the L. W. Andrews Casket Mill was given to the whole family in the afternoon. Lenwood Andrews invited the Benson-Poland family to tour the mill as many of Benson-Poland ancestors worked in the mill and in other areas of the L. W. Andrews funeral business. It was enjoyed and appreciated by all very much. Lenwood made the tour even more interesting by starting up the machinery with water power. Many thanks to Lenwood for his thoughtfulness.

Those at the reunion were: from Tempe, Ariz., Dorothy Critzer and granddaughter Suzy Curry; from Woodstock, Buster and Claribel Poland; Leon and Rosalie Poland; Lloyd and Gina Poland; Natasia and Alex; Larry and Sherry Poland; Vernon and Tony Poland; Dennis and Debbie Poland; Heath and Brandy; Richard and Andrea Wing; Kelle, Sarah and Jessie Hart; Emory and Gelo Ryerson; Diane and Lisa Ryerson; Mathew, Melanie and Cassidy; Maudee and Erlon Hadley; from Bethel, Judi Brown and Aaron Beam; Rammy and Chas Poland; Tracy and Ken Grover; Rachel, Samantha, and Alex; Kyle Curtis; from West Paris, Ken and Sandra Poland; Phelps, Joan and Jo-Anna Poland; Terry, Phil, Amy and Andrew Merrill; Diana and Erik Poland; Tim and Patty Poland; Rick, Karon, Ryan and Doug Wing and Jaime and Derek Leonard; from Oxford, Sandra, Mike, Jamie, Tara and Erika Monzy; from Norway, Donna and Dick Karshaba; from Florida, Lani and Bert Bertram; from Gray, Sherry Poland; from Campton, N.H., James and Evelyn Dunn; from Freetown, Bob and Alberta Harlow; from Brunswick, Betty and Ray Estabrook.

A book of poetry by Helen Keith Benson Poland was given to each family attending. Andrea Wing, one of Helen's daughters, put together some of Helen's many poems for the family. A gift certificate was presented to Andrea for her efforts.

Other news—Dottie Critzer and Suzy Curry are staying with Andrea Wing for a week. Suzy is spending some time with Kelle Hart and girls while she is here. Andrea is having the week off from work while her sister is visiting.

The next Willing Workers Meeting will be held June 29, at 7 p.m., at the Union Church. We are hoping to have a good attendance as some of the upcoming events need to be discussed and ideas suggested.

June 8 and rainy. Everything is so lush and green; sitting looking out the bedroom window I can look out into the apple orchard and beyond the blue hills. The rains are stopping and here and there a stately white birch blends into the landscape. I am also reminiscing as 32 years ago our son Wilfred was born. Our oldest son, Frankie, was visiting school as the next September he was starting kindergarten and the last day of school an 8th-grader could take one of those to-be students to visit school. I kept wondering if Frankie would get back before I had to leave but didn't have to worry as Wilfred wasn't born until early evening. Sometimes, looking back...how vivid memories appear.

Nathan Bean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bean, graduated June 9. I believe he is the only senior on our road this year.

Amy and Marybeth Hamme and Shilo Hutchins are on Telstar's winning softball team; the first playoff game was June 7 at Telstar.

Frank and Sid Murphy visited Frank and Elaine Borowski, of Gorham, N.H., June 3.

June 1, Dennis, Lisa, Kaylee, Andy and Adam Smith went to Gray Animal Farm and Fish Hatchery.

John Landry came to spend the summer with his father, Dr. Leonard Shaw and family.

Dr. Shaw went skeet shooting near Richmond, June 4 with Don Cross and Rick Young, Becky, Jon and Jen Shaw went to brother David Keniston's and family, in Norway. Becky took Jon and Jen Shaw and Health and Heather Keniston and all went swimming at School House Beach, at Norway Lake.

Alden MacDougal left May 25 to June 1 to MacDougal's Corner at Prince Edward Island to visit relatives. He went with his cousin from Rumbold.

Chuckie Mason IV played baseball June 5 for Greenwood Little League.

June 5, Judy Coolidge had a combined party for Sarah, 13, and Jessica, 11. Sarah had as guests Jamie Lewis, Vanessa Yates, Meagan Dolbee and Dawn Seamus. And Jessica had as guests Lydia Grover, Briana Wilson, Tracey Sweet, Cindy Wheeler and Heidi Blake. A scavenger hunt was enjoyed and each girl had cake and ice cream.

June 8, 9, and 10, Gerry Shimamura went to Portland as a delegate to the Nazarene District Assembly.

Last week Gerry Shimamura, John and Lorraine Mills took Gerry's truck on a midnight ride to Mexico to pick up some furniture that Lorraine had bought.

Bradley and Fern Benson came from Poland on June 4 to take his mother, Sylvia Benson, to eat at Wilfred's in Gorham, N.H.

Sylvia went Wednesday and stayed overnight with her daughter, Sharon and Davis Kimball in Waterford.

June 4 was pleased to have Nora Hobson Smith, of Conway, N.H., come to visit; her niece-in-law drove her (ashamed I can't remember her name), and they stopped at Louise Loring's, in Gilead, so she could show them how to get here.

June 6, Kim Gibson, of Lewiston, stopped for a short visit.

People are braving the bugs to get their gardens planted, weeded or taken care of. Suspect the rain has helped breed them.

No one agrees with the opinions of others, he merely agrees with his own opinions expressed by somebody else.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Here is a comment on Queen Elizabeth's grandmother, Queen Mary:

"As soon as she became Queen, she set out to make the crown and arrangement of the royal castles and palaces her own special responsibility. She already knew a good deal about history and antiquities, and that foundation she began to build knowledge that made her a recognized authority on pictures, furniture, china, tapestries, silver and objects of art."

Ray, Anella, and Belra Burnham gave the Society a book on the Norway Sequelentennial. Francis Brooks gave us some books.

Do remember to visit the museum this summer on Saturdays 1-4 p.m.

MRS. COOLIDGE'S GRADE 2 at Ethel Bisset School is studying about dinosaurs. They have been doing research, measuring, discussing, etc. Each student was given the assignment to go on a dinosaur hunt. They had to use their imaginations to come up with something to bring in for a share time. And they had to make up a story about what they found in: where they found it, what it was, etc. Above, the students seem to be gathered around a dinosaur egg (of sorts).

Adult Education

The SAD 44 Adult and Community Education program is accepting registrations for courses to be offered during the summer session, from June 26 to Aug. 8. According to Director Cathy Newell, the summer session is especially focused at the needs of adults who are interested in returning to education or improving their job-related skills. All classes will be held at Telstar High School in Bethel from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. unless otherwise noted; no classes will meet during the week of July 3.

Three six-week computer courses have been scheduled, including Introduction to Computers, on Mondays, and Computer Uses with Applications, on Tuesdays. Appleworks is an integrated software program including word-processing, data base and spreadsheet components. A third class will be held on Wednesdays, repeating either the introductory or the more advanced topics, depending on the enrollment. Places are limited to 14 in the introductory class and 10 in Appleworks. The instructor is Wally DeVoe, of Hanover, who is a computer instructor at Rumbold High School. The cost is $10 per course.

Individualized Refresher math will be held on Tuesdays and will allow adults to improve their level of need, from computational skills to algebra. Patricia Morey will be the instructor for this course, which is an excellent opportunity for preparation for entry into post-secondary programs in the fall. The cost of the course is $10.

GED Preparation at the Adult Learning Center will be held on Monday evenings with Rocky Graham and will feature practice testing, plus individualized work in preparation for passing the GED test. There is no charge for this class or for testing. Adults who are not planning to take the GED may also use the Adult Learning Center to brush-up on writing or reading skills.

Reading Instruction for Adults is also available during the summer, with individual tutors. This service is free and confidential and may be obtained by calling the toll-free hotline, 1-800-322-5455, or Cathy Newell at 824-2780.

Local firms take part in Maine marketing effort

More than 150 Maine businesses have signed up for the Maine Products Marketing Program, a major new small business assistance initiative announced by Gov. John R. McKernan Jr. last March. The program uses the theme "Maine Products—America's Best" to promote goods produced in the state.

"The initial response to the program has been overwhelming," according to Director Joan Anderson, who said that a catalog featuring Maine products is nearing completion and will be mailed to thousands of wholesale buyers throughout the country.

"The buyer's guide gives many small Maine producers the opportunity to participate in a national marketing effort," said Anderson. "In addition, program participants may use a specially designed 'America's Best' label on their products."

The Maine Products Marketing Program also provides assistance in product development, business planning and marketing.

Area business participating in the program include Dragon Stained Glass Studio, Norway; Maine Line Products, Bethel; Norway Footwear Corporation, Norway; Rag & Chary Trap Co., Oxford; Sebago Woodcrafters, Buckfield; and T-A-K-A-RAD, Bethel.

"The program is open to producers of Maine products in such categories as crafts, food, furniture and apparel. For more information contact Joan Anderson, Maine Products Marketing Program, State House Station 59, Augusta, 04333, or call toll-free, 1-800-872-3833."

Sunday River starts fund to provide scholarships

A new scholarship program, spurred by a $165,000 contribution by Sunday River Ski Resort, seeks to improve student aspirations and improve academic performance. Sunday River President Leslie B. Otten unveiled the program at the Telstar Regional High School Senior Awards Ceremony June 7. The program will assist students showing improvement in their grades, as well as those ineligible for conventional scholarships.

The scholarship program, entitled Project Opportunity, is an unusual partnership between SAD #44 staff and members of the SAD #44 area business community. It is said to be the first of its kind in the country. The program seeks to raise student aspirations by providing incentives for academic performance, funding special activities aimed at raising students' self-worth, granting stipends for summer enrichment opportunities, and providing scholarship money for post-graduate academic and vocational study.

Project Opportunity is an outgrowth of discussions between Newry Selectman Steve Wight and Telstar Principal Ted Davis. Mr. Davis, a strong advocate of experiential education programs such as Outdoor Bound, had been seeking funding to allow Telstar students to attend that program. Mr. Wight offered to see if Sunday River's Otten was interested in underwriting the program.

"It turned out that Les had already earmarked $75,000 for a local scholarship program, but wasn't really sure how to put it to use," Mr. Wight said. "He wanted more than a scholarship for the best students. He had a desire to raise the expectation and achievement levels of the local kids, and wanted a way for them to project themselves beyond high school—to know there was a future for them."

The three men, plus Telstar guidance counselor Dan Hart, gathered for a brainstorming session and emerged with the framework for a program to encourage achievement by raising students' desires and abilities to work towards goals. They dubbed the program Project Opportunity, and sought to bring other members of the community into the program. Currently, the Project Opportunity board includes Messrs. Wight, Davis and Otten, plus Bethel attorney Gordon Gillies, former World Bank executive Ken Bohr, SAD #44 Adult Education Director Cathy Newell, and consultant Jane Holt deFries.

The board seeks to increase the program's endowment by soliciting funds from other area corporations. Mr. Otten has increased Sunday River's original contribution from $75,000 to a total of $165,000 by 1993, and hopes that other industries benefiting from western Maine's economic upswing will offer matching funds to Sunday River's contributions that will bring the total endowment of the program to $441,000 by 1993-94 that time income produced by the endowment will be disbursed. Until 1993, several scholarships per year will be awarded to Calling all loggers!

Local loggers are encouraged to contact the Chamber of Commerce office or Bill Barter, at the Bethel Inn, to sign up for the Woodsmen's Competition on Molycock Day.

Prize money will be available thanks to sponsors Boise Cascade and Bethel Furniture Stock.

Students who best meet the criteria under which the program was established.

Four local students have received grants from the program. Valerie Hayden, of Andover, and Jim Merrill, of Bethel, will each receive $1,000 grants for college tuition. Valerie will study political science at Middlebury College in Vermont, and Jim will study environmental sciences at Unity College.

Summer stipends were awarded to Noelle Gauthier and Audrey Thibodeau, both of Bethel.

Telstar's Class of 1993, which enters the school as freshmen this autumn, will be the first class to take full advantage of the program. Throughout their Telstar careers, members of the class will be awarded points on the basis of their grades, with an "A" worth three points, a "B" worth two, and a "C" worth one.

Bonus points will be given for improving grades. For the period of a four-quarter course, for example, a student who received a "C" for all four quarters would earn a total of four points. If that student were to bring the "C" to a "B" the second quarter, and then receive "A"s for the remaining two quarters, he/she would receive 1.5 bonus points, yielding a total of 10.5 points. Similar bonuses are offered for multi-year or semester courses. The board hopes that this scoring system will enable academic "late-bloomers" to enjoy the advantages of scholarships otherwise unavailable, as most scholarships recognize long-term academic achievement, rather than students who gain initiative as their education progresses.

Mr. Otten described the program as he presented the scholarships to Valerie and Jim. "The job market in the United States is becoming more technical," he said. "Western Maine's shifting economic base has created a need for highly trained, well-motivated employees in positions we didn't even dream of 10 years ago." He pointed out that test scores in western Maine lag behind state and national averages and that a disturbing number of students fail to continue their education. "For some, the problem is money; for others, it's because there is no expectation. There is a feeling that their future is preset. We want students to know that their futures are not preset," he said.

Adult Ed announces summer course listings

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program will offer several courses during the summer session, from June 26 to Aug. 9, excluding the week of July 3. According to Director Cathy Newell, the summer session is especially focused at the needs of adults who are interested in returning to education or improving their job-related skills. All classes will be held at Telstar High School, 6:30-9:30 p.m., unless otherwise noted.

Three, six-week computer courses have been scheduled, including "Introduction to computers," on Mondays, and "Computer uses with Appleworks" on Tuesdays. Appleworks is an integrated software program including wordprocessing, data base and spreadsheet components. A third class will be held on Wednesdays, repeating either the introductory or the more advanced topic depending on enrollment. Places are limited to 14 in the introductory class and 10 in the Appleworks class. The instructor is Wall DeVos, of Haver, who is a computer instructor at Rumford High School. The cost is $10 per course.

"Individualized refresher math" will be held on Tuesdays and will allow adults to improve their math skills at their level of need, from computational skills to algebra. Patricia Morey will be the instructor for this course, which is an excellent opportunity for preparation for entry into post-secondary programs in the fall. The cost of the course is $10.

"GED preparation" at the Adult Learning Center will be held on Monday evenings with Rookie Graham and will feature practice-testing, plus individualized work in preparation for passing the GED test. There is no charge for this class or for testing. Adults who are not planning to take the GED may also use the Adult Learning Center to brush up on writing or reading skills. "Reading instruction for adults" is also available during the summer with individual tutors. This service is free and confidential and may be obtained by calling the toll free hotline, 1-800-322-5455, or Cathy Newell at 624-2780.

The Plus Side

Pills, pills, pills. Big ones, little ones, pink, red and blue ones. How to tell one from another and what to do with it. Questions—Have recently changed doctors, should I tell the new one about the drugs the other doctor prescribed?

Answer—Unless he's a mindreader, you should tell the new doctor about everything. Your doctor should know all the medicines you take including non-prescription drugs so none will interact negatively.

You should also let the doctor know what disagrees with you. Be sure to ask how you are expected to feel after taking a new medication and any side effects anticipated. Once you know, do what the doctor says—trying to save pills by taking more than the dosage recommended will do only one thing—make you sicker.

If you have questions regarding the use of prescription drugs call your Area Agency on Aging or write Maine Committee on Aging, State House Station 127, Augusta, 04333.

SCOTT KORHONEN GRADUATES
Scott P. Korhonen, of Bethel, was among 165 students who graduated from Vermont Technical College in Randolph Center, VT, May 20.

Mr. Korhonen, who graduated, with honors, received an associate degree in applied science, with a major in agribusiness management technology.

The course is $20. CPR recertification will be offered on July 25, 6-9 p.m., also at the Health Center for $10.

"Introduction to interactive television" courses will be held on July 11 and repeated on Aug. 1 for adults who are interested in learning about the ITV starting this fall. David Ackley, of the University of Maine at Farmington, Rumford-Mexico Center, will be present to discuss options the new system offers.

There is no charge for this seminar. To enroll in any of the SAD #44 courses, call the Adult and Community Education office, 624-2780, between 8-4, or evenings by chance. Non-SAD #44 residents will be charged an extra $5 registration fee. Those 62 and older are not charged a fee.

Portrait of the GREAT AMERICAN INVESTOR

Kelly Hummer is more than a nurse. As an oncology specialist at a leading hospital for children, she also plays the role of teacher, big sister and friend.

Kelly devotes her life to helping other people's children. But she saves her money for the day she has her own. Kelly Hummer buys U.S. Savings Bonds just as her parents did. And that makes her one of the Great American Investors.

Like Kelly, 30 million people invest in America while helping themselves. The Bonds they buy today pay competitive rates, like money-market accounts. They're free from state and local income tax, and federal tax can be deferred.

You can purchase Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan at work, or where you bank. They're a great way to make the money you've worked for start working for you. For more information on U.S. Savings Bonds, call toll-free: 1-800-US-BONDS. For a free brochure, send a postcard to U.S. Savings Bonds, Dept. 891-N, Washington, D.C. 20226.

Medicine Storage Tips

Proper storage of prescription and nonprescription medicines helps ensure their freshness and potency when medicines are taken. Here are six tips for storing and discarding medicines:

1. Do not store medicines in the bathroom. The moisture in bathrooms may speed the deterioration of many medicines.
2. Clean out all medicine storage areas at least once each year. Throw away medicines that are no longer being used.
3. Discard medicines that are outdated and discolored. If the medicine does not have an expiration date, throw it away after two years. Do not keep medicines that are not labeled.
4. Flush discarded medicines down the toilet. Do not leave medicines in the trash or other areas that are accessible to children and pets.
5. Do not purchase excessive quantities of medicine. Some medicines lose potency when stored for long periods of time.
6. Do not store medicines in automobile glove compartments. High temperatures during the summer months can reduce the potency of most medicines.

Chances look good for federal reimbursement for May flood damages

Last week, President George Bush declared Oxford County a disaster area, because of damage caused by the May floods. Local officials in the county had reported over a half million dollars of flood damage to state officials. (See last week's Citizen for breakdown by town of damage estimates.)

Local officials from affected towns in the county were scheduled to meet with county, state and federal officials yesterday, in South Paris, to discuss procedures for getting federal reimbursement for flood damage. The federal government, through the Federal Emergency Management Agency, will reimburse up to 75 percent of the cost of repairing damaged roads, bridges, etc. Gov. John McKernan said he would push legislation to have the state pay for any flood damage bills not picked up by the federal government.

West Paris hopes to lower taxes despite school hike

Despite an increase of nearly 12 percent in their SAD #17 assessment, West Paris residents will not see an increase in their tax rate this year.

The town will be paying $217,814 toward the school system this year—up from $194,727 last year; however, the selectmen expect to be able to lower the tax rate (currently $18.60 per $1,000 of assessed valuation) by as much one mill.

Town officials credit a tight municipal budget, down slightly from last year's, and new property on the tax rolls for their being able to bring the tax rate down.

The SAD #17 budget, which was approved by district voters Monday, totals $13.66 million. That figure represents an expenditure increase of 8.3 percent, and an assessment increase to district towns of 14.9 percent.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m. Coffee, tea and other beverages as well as snacks will be served throughout the day. Picnicking on the lovely grounds is encouraged if the weather permits; otherwise there is ample space in the Society's meeting room.

At 1 p.m., Dr. Stanley R. Howe will make a presentation on the Mason family of Bethel. Dr. Howe is the director of the Bethel Historical Society and its Dr. Moses Mason House Museum.

Throughout the day there will be Mason artifacts exhibited, as well as tours throughout the Museum.

The Masons in the Bethel area are descended from Captain Hugh Mason and wife, Hester, of Watertown, Mass.; Dr. Moses Mason, great-great-grandson of Hugh, born in Dublin, N.H., came to Bethel with his parents, Moses Mason Jr. and Eunice Ayers Mason, to join the town's earliest settlers.

Anyone attending is urged to bring any family information available on his or her Mason family connection and present it at the registration desk. Genealogical assistance will be available to those wishing it.

For further information on this event, telephone or write Dr. Stanley R. Howe, P.O. Box 12, Bethel, 04217, 207-824-2506, or Mrs. Elizabeth Mason Carter, P.O. Box 44, West Bethel, 04288, 207-336-2343 (during the day or evening).

THERE WAS AN OPEN HOUSE at the former Andrews casket factory, in South Woodstock, Saturday. Above, Pete Andrews shows visitors how the equipment ran with belts, powered by a water wheel. While the waterpower was used to run the saws, planer, drill press, edgers and other tools Saturday, nowadays the equipment is normally run by electricity. The factory was built in 1824. The open house was in conjunction with a meeting of the Society of Workers in Early Arts and Trades. Members demonstrated many early American crafts, including rope making, hooking rugs, handmade lace, as well as woodworking on the factory's waterpowered machines.
